

AUTHOR BIO

Steven Novak is an illustrator, graphic designer and the author of Forts: Fathers and Sons, the first in a series of three novels.

Steven is co-founder of The Literary Underground, a co-op promotional house for some of the most exciting new indie authors in the business.

After spending his most formative of years in Chicago, Illinois, Steven moved to Columbus, Ohio and enrolled in the Columbus College of Art and Design. From there, he made his way to southern California where he married his wife, Tamara.

He has worked in the graphic arts/publishing industry for nearly ten years, illustrated a number of children's books and provided work to direct-market sellers everywhere. When he's not expanding on the world he's created in Forts, Steven writes and illustrates a successful webcomic titled, The Bad Guys, designs book covers for various authors, images for web promotions, and deals with the duties associated with being a thirty-three year old step-grandfather. (It's a long story.)

His work can be found at: www.novakillustration.com

